It was a fantastic party. Almost the entire school is here. You can hear ringing laughter and pleasant music. Different-color spotlight illuminate the dancing graduates in the center. Everyone is having fun and happy at the end of their studies, and only I can't relax. Why can't I just walk up and tell you how I feel? This feeling torments me from the inside. You're standing in a circle of friends and smiling so sweetly. Suddenly, slow music started playing. Everyone moved toward the dance floor, and you were finally alone. Maybe this is my chance? Overcoming myself, I moved towards you. I went over and looked into your crystal blue eyes. You looked at me in silence. The feelings that had been tormenting me for so long were suddenly pouring out of me against my will. I told you everything. I told you how I love you, how much it hurts to see you with others, how I try to catch your eye every time. You suddenly hugged me, I started crying.

Task 1. Read the text. Decide if the statements 11-19 are true (T) or false (F).

Mesa Verde National Park covers more than 80 square miles of the Four Corners region of the United States, where the borders of Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico meet. It was once the home of the Pueblo people, a Native American civilisation famous for its amazing cliff dwellings. The best examples of these incredible homes can be seen in the walls of the park's spectacular canyons. The Four Corners is a landscape of extremes – hot and dry in summer, covered in snow in winter. It isn't an easy place to live, but the Pueblo people made their home here and farmed the land for over 700 years, from 600 to 1300 AD. They built complicated 'villages' (their name comes from the Spanish word for village, pueblo) where hundreds of people shared the protection of their strong stone walls. Early European settlers in North America were amazed by their building ability. The Cliff Palace is the largest Pueblo cliff dwelling in the park. It's best seen from above, where the building will leave you thinking about how these people could have built such complex houses. The most interesting of all the houses is the Balcony House. It is made up of 40 rooms, connected by long, narrow tunnels and built around a series of shared spaces and can only be visited with a guide. You have to be ready to climb - the only door into the house is at the top of a ten-metre high wooden ladder! When the Pueblo people lived here, they would have entered their homes by climbing ladders and ropes up the steep cliff wall. Once inside, they would have pulled the ladder into the house in order to protect themselves from enemies.

Exploring the maze of tunnels and rooms, you really start to understand what life must have been like for the Pueblo people so long ago. As you stand at the edge of the cliff, looking down into the canyon below and listening to the silence of nature, it's easy to imagine that you have travelled back in time.

Do you dream of spending New Year's Eve somewhere exciting? Here are some suggestions of iconic places to celebrate New Year. Take your pick!

A New York City, USA

Over a million people participate in celebrations all over the city, but the most famous place to see in the New Year is Times Square. The tradition began in 1904, but the 'ball drop' started in 1907, when setting off fireworks was banned. At exactly 11.59 pm, a large ball, illuminated with bright lights, is lowered down the side of the Times Tower building, and 60 seconds later it stops to signal the end of one year and the beginning of the next.

The ball drop has become famous all over the world, and nowadays there are fireworks, too! It's crowded but cold, so wear a coat, hat and scarf.

B Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

Because it's summer in Brazil, Copacabana Beach in Rio has one of the biggest New Year's Eve parties in the world. Many people wear white clothes to symbolise a new start, and some people bathe in the sea or float candles on the water. Over 2 million people stand on the shore to view the totally stunning fireworks display at midnight. Of course there's also traditional Samba music and dancing to make sure you have a good time!

C Edinburgh, Scotland

Hogmanay is the Scottish name for New Year's Eve, a very important celebration in Scotland. Edinburgh's Hogmanay is a three-day event which starts with a colourful Torchlight Procession, music and fireworks. Then there's a Keilidh, a traditional party with Scottish music and dancing, as well as a pop concert and a street party. At midnight on New Year's Eve, join 80,000 people singing the traditional New Year's song, Auld Lang Syne, based on a Scottish poem and folk song. On New Year's Day, there's the Loony Dook, a (quick!) swim in the freezing River Forth in aid of charity, or you could just go down to the beach to watch!

20. Which celebration doesn't have music? A +
21. Which celebration doesn't involve going in water? A +
22. Which celebration lasts the longest? C +
23. Which celebration has the most people? B +
24. Which celebration involves doing something to help other people? C +
25. Which celebration often means wearing clothes of one colour? B +

It was a fantastic party. It was the birthday of my best friend from school, who turned 16. Almost all of our school came to this party. And a boy, I was in love with, was there too.

His name is Keiji, he is my good friend and classmate too. He has beautiful short bright blond hair, brown eyes and a beautiful smile that always ^{past?} made me blush and smile.

? Then at a party we stood together at the table with food and had a nice conversation. I felt very happy around ⁹³ him. Slow waltz music began abruptly and everyone stood ¹⁰³ in pairs.

And then Keiji asked me to dance. I was shocked, but I ¹¹⁵ agreed. He hugged me and held me close. ¹²² He leaned over to me and spoke ¹³³ softly in my ear:

- I ¹³⁶ love you.

I smiled and also answered quietly ¹⁴²

- I ¹⁴⁷ love you too, Keiji

It was a fantastic party. There was a lot of music and people who were dancing.
I saw a beautiful girl. She was doing nothing. I felt that all ~~isn't~~ ~~wasn't~~ instead of her doesn't matter anything. I sat down next to her. I asked her name. Fortunately, Sally answered. I was grateful to the gods and I thought that I'm the happiest man in the world. Suddenly, she invited me to walk in the park with her. But I didn't hear her. I was enjoying her beautiful green eyes, long dark hair and oval face. I didn't know that I would be sad in the next minutes. She accepted phone call, said "OK", and ran out of the club. I realized that I didn't take her phone number.
I turned sad and went home. And I ~~have~~ have never ~~anything~~ heard anything about my dear Sally.
