Task 1. You will hear an archaeology student called Gina Burbage talking about how she first became interested in the subject as a teenager. For questions 1 - 10, complete the sentences with a word or short phrase.

Gina Burbage: Archaeology student

Gina first got involved in the Timescale Project at the suggestion of her
(9) ⁺ little brother. Gina's garden was selected for the project because there used to be a (10) ⁺ castle nearby. Before the day of the dig, Gina studied a book of (11) ⁺ old maps to find out more about her village.
Gina compares the geophysical survey to an (12) ⁺ X-ray to give us an idea of how it works. The geophysical survey showed the position of an old (13) ⁺ well in Gina's garden. The first object found in Gina's garden was a (14) ⁻ bottle dating from the nineteenth century. The first piece of pottery found in Gina's garden dated from the (15) ⁺ 16 century. Gina was very excited when a (16)
⁺ coin from the Roman period was found in her garden. Gina collected a total of (17) ⁺ 150 pieces of pottery from the hole she dug in her garden.

Gina uses the word (18) ⁺ inspired to explain how she felt at the end of the day.

Reading

Time: 30 minutes

Task 1. Read the text. Match developments 11-15 with examples A-E.

Everyone eats. People around the world differ in many ways, but dinner unites us all. Throughout history, we humans have always found nourishing ways to use whatever food we could lay our hands on. The earliest diets were hunted and gathered from the foods that were available as a result of geography and climate. But as soon as people figured out how to trade foods, they did. The current diets of most world populations have moved well beyond hunting and gathering. They have evolved in response to changes in food production that began with the Industrial Revolution some 200 years ago. New means of preservation allow foods to be eaten long after they are grown and harvested (hence ketchup). New means of transportation - railroads, trucks and airplanes (as well as technologies such as refrigeration) - mean that foods grown in one place can be consumed 'fresh' many thousands of miles away. Thus, even in some place as remote as Bhutan, people eat oranges, surely grown well beyond the Himalayas. New processing technologies allow companies to make shelf-stable food products that can be transported and consumed much later (like pasta). New technologies have permitted the development of previously unknown food products like instant coffee and Cheese Whiz. New marketing methods can create worldwide demand for such products (chief among them, the almost ubiquitous Coca-Cola).

But the photographs have even more to tell us. As conflicts resolve and people in developing countries become better off, they acquire more stable resources and change the way they eat. They inevitably replace the grains and beans in their diets with foods obtained from animal sources. They buy more meat, more sweet foods and more processed foods: they eat more meals prepared by others. Soon they eat more food in general. They start gaining weight, become overweight, then develop heart disease, diabetes, and the other chronic diseases so common in industrialized societies. Here we have the great irony of modern nutrition: at a time when hundreds of millions of people do not have enough to eat, hundreds of millions more are eating too much and are overweight or obese.

Today, except in the very poorest countries, more people are overweight than underweight. Some socially conscious governments struggling to feed their hungry populations must also contend with the health problems of people who eat too much food. The phenomenon of going from not having enough food to overeating is now so common that it has been given its own name: the nutrition transition. To see nutrition transition in action, you need only compare the diets of families from Mali, Mongolia and the Philippines with those from France, Australia and the United States. Rates of obesity are rising rapidly in all countries, but are highest in the most industrialized countries. To understand why, just examine the shopping lists and food displays.

Fly-Rights—A Consumer Guide to Air Travel

If your reservations are booked far enough ahead of time, the airline may offer to mail your tickets to you. However, if you don't receive the tickets and the airline's records show that they mailed them, you may have to go through cumbersome lost-ticket procedures. It is safer to check the telephone directory for a conveniently located travel agency or airline ticket office and buy your tickets there.

As soon as you receive your ticket, make sure all the information on it is correct especially the airports (if any of the cities have more than one) and the flight dates. Have any necessary corrections made immediately.

It's a good idea to reconfirm your reservations before you start your trip; flight schedules sometimes change.

On international trips, most airlines require that you reconfirm your onward or return reservations at least 72 hours before each flight. If you don't, your reservations may be canceled.

Check your tickets as you board each flight to ensure that only the correct coupon has been removed by the airline agent.

16. Numbering the paragraphs 1 through 4 as they now appear, choose the option that places them in chronological order.

A 2, 3, 4, 1

~~B 3, 1, 2, 4~~

+ (C) 3, 2, 1, 4

D 1, 2, 3, 4

17. As the passage appears in paragraph 1, why is it suggested that you buy your tickets from a "conveniently located" agency or office?

A because you can stop on your way to the airport to pick up your tickets

+ (B) because you can pick your tickets up rather than relying on the mail

C because the airlines themselves often make mistakes in issuing tickets

D because it is good to support local businesses

18. Which is a possible result of not following the advice offered in the first sentence of paragraph 2?

A You might fly into the right city, but the wrong airport.

+ (B) You might miss your flight, because the date was improperly recorded.

C You might not be allowed to board your flight because the name on the ticket doesn't match that on your ID.

D Any of the above could happen as a result of not following the advice.

Task 3. Read the text. Are the sentences 19-25 true (T) or false (F)?

Enjoy the ride

We often hear people claim, 'It's the journey, not the destination that matters.' Based on my experience with children, this couldn't be further from the truth. To a child's mind, there is nothing more boring than having to sit in the car for hours. Inevitably, as a parent, you run out of ways to entertain the kids in the first thirty minutes, leaving several hours of hearing, 'How much further?' and 'Are we there yet?' The journey to the holiday destination quickly becomes an obstacle you have to overcome.

However, as we get older, these journeys no longer seem a hindrance. Some people actually engineer ways to increase the journey time by stopping off at a hotel en route, or taking a scenic route. So, why is this the case? Why do we enjoy journeys?

Firstly, it's a good chance to get to know your travel companions. Let's face it, in everyday life, how often do we have time for a three-hour chat with someone? It seldom happens because we are used to constantly rushing around. When we're at work, we're working hard; when we're at home, we're preparing food or doing housework. If our travelling companion is someone we don't know well, we often discover that there is more to them than meets the eye. Even if we're with someone we know well, we're bound to discover things we never knew about them, things that have gone under the radar up to this point. This in itself can make the friendship stronger and enables us to form a closer bond with our friends.

Secondly, by talking to others in this confined space, we often find the courage to offload our burdens. This might come from discussing our imperfections, or our relationships, or our low self-confidence. The worries going round in our heads can find a way out on these long journeys, which in turn takes a weight off our shoulders. We might not find an answer to our problems, but we might receive a degree of assurance – a kind of therapy, if you like.

Thirdly, we are forced to sit down on a car journey. On a longer trip, driving can be shared equally, allowing some relaxation for all involved. Naturally, many of us are sitting down at work or at home, but sitting in a car means we're not distracted by the boss or by chores. We can simply enjoy the scenery, have a nap, or listen to music without feeling under pressure to do something more productive.

Lastly, a long car journey gives us a respect for distance and awe-inspiring landscape. No one is too long in the tooth to appreciate a great sunset or a beautiful snow-capped mountain in the distance. We are given the opportunity to notice things we are unable to see in our day-to-day lives, or that we're usually distracted from appreciating.

Of course, there may be a few hiccups along the way – our travel companion's demand for toilet breaks could get on our nerves, or the severe weather warnings could have been right after all – but it's likely that a long car journey will have more ups than downs. I recommend contacting a few friends and organizing a road trip to anyone who is getting tired of their everyday routine. It will do you the world of good.

3. (your own idea)

You should write about 200 - 250 words.

In our time, when technology has reached the point where it can completely replace human labor, people ~~some~~ have become sedentary. Some ~~sp~~ stopped doing any physical exercises. Of course, it makes your health worse, because ~~it~~ ^{gr} is laid by nature, that ~~person~~ ^{gr} must perform physical exercises. Nowadays a lot of people suffer from diseases due to a passive lifestyle.

^{gr} Society ~~is~~ divided^s into two types, who condemn a passive and unhealthy lifestyle, and who adhere to it and do not see anything terrible in it. Still, we can not say that all modern society has forgotten about sports, many people try to monitor their physical fitness and body shape.

Personally, I do sport every day, play basketball and football, and do various exercises. I find it very useful, because you become more physically prepared. You never know when your power will come in handy. I think, ^{gr} that parents must instill a love to a sport to their children, and if they ^{gr} will do it, people will be more sporty in future. People must take care about their health. And if people will do it, then humanity will thrive.

How important is to practise a sport regularly when you are in your teens?

Everyday we see people who are jogging in the mornings, professional sportsments are popular on the Internet, a plenty of advertisements connected with sport and advices from the doctor, which insists us on doing sports. Does sport really influence on us and how?

Firstly, when you are a teen, it's the best time to take on sport classes, yoga lessons etc. As for me, I have been playing tennis for 8 years and I can't live even a day without sport. In the future you will always have a desire to keep fit, if you start now.

Secondly, when you do sports, for example play volleyball, basketball, go swimming, the number of diseases gets ^{sp} low. It is a well-know fact that exercises make us stronger and more aspiring. ^{ur}

Thirdly, inevitably appearance plays a huge role in our social life. At least we feel confident ~~when~~ after doing sports, we have more in common with other teenagers. Also we get an opportunity to make new friends ⁱⁿ sports school.

In the end, doing sport forms your personality, make you feel happy and you gain experience in competitions.

^{lex} After all, do sports is worth-trying. When you try it, you won't be able to stop, believe me!

Health is very important in any persons live. If you are not healthy you can not live and do all that you want. But if you are a healthy person and have a good health you can do ~~all~~ everything that you want for example: you can travel and visit many new and interesting places and you can visit ~~at~~ different foreign countries, and also you can try any new kinds of sports such as surfing and climbing.

People, ~~who~~ who have unhealthy way of live - people, who smoke, drink alcohol, eat fast food and do not go in for sports - have a lot of problems with their health and their's life is always shorter than the life of a healthy person.

In my opinion everybody knows that a person is healthy if the person have a healthy way of live. What does it mean? It means that ~~if~~ the person is not smoke, drink alcohol and eat healthy food. But one of the most important things in the healthy way of life is going for sports and fitness. For example people can play tennis, volleyball, basketball, hockey or people can dance or swim. Sport is very important because it makes the persons health better.

In conclusion I ^{would} like to say that health is the most important ~~for~~ thing for the persons live and sport is one of the most important ~~and~~ thing to make the health better

Task 1. Read the text. Match developments 11-15 with examples A-E.

Everyone eats. People around the world differ in many ways, but dinner unites us all. Throughout history, we humans have always found nourishing ways to use whatever food we could lay our hands on. The earliest diets were hunted and gathered from the foods that were available as a result of geography and climate. But as soon as people figured out how to trade foods, they did. The current diets of most world populations have moved well beyond hunting and gathering. They have evolved in response to changes in food production that began with the Industrial Revolution some 200 years ago. New means of preservation allow foods to be eaten long after they are grown and harvested (hence ketchup). New means of transportation - railroads, trucks and airplanes (as well as technologies such as refrigeration) - mean that foods grown in one place can be consumed 'fresh' many thousands of miles away. Thus, even in some place as remote as Bhutan, people eat oranges, surely grown well beyond the Himalayas. New processing technologies allow companies to make shelf-stable food products that can be transported and consumed much later (like pasta). New technologies have permitted the development of previously unknown food products like instant coffee and Cheese Whiz. New marketing methods can create worldwide demand for such products (chief among them, the almost ubiquitous Coca-Cola).

But the photographs have even more to tell us. As conflicts resolve and people in developing countries become better off, they acquire more stable resources and change the way they eat. They inevitably replace the grains and beans in their diets with foods obtained from animal sources. They buy more meat, more sweet foods and more processed foods: they eat more meals prepared by others. Soon they eat more food in general. They start gaining weight, become overweight, then develop heart disease, diabetes, and the other chronic diseases so common in industrialized societies. Here we have the great irony of modern nutrition: at a time when hundreds of millions of people do not have enough to eat, hundreds of millions more are eating too much and are overweight or obese.

Today, except in the very poorest countries, more people are overweight than underweight. Some socially conscious governments struggling to feed their hungry populations must also contend with the health problems of people who eat too much food. The phenomenon of going from not having enough food to overeating is now so common that it has been given its own name: the nutrition transition. To see nutrition transition in action, you need only compare the diets of families from Mali, Mongolia and the Philippines with those from France, Australia and the United States. Rates of obesity are rising rapidly in all countries, but are highest in the most industrialized countries. To understand why, just examine the shopping lists and food displays.

Task 2. Read the instruction. Answer questions 16-18.

Fly-Rights—A Consumer Guide to Air Travel

ⓐ If your reservations are booked far enough ahead of time, the airline may offer to mail your tickets to you. However, if you don't receive the tickets and the airline's records show that they mailed them, you may have to go through cumbersome lost-ticket procedures. It is safer to check the telephone directory for a conveniently located travel agency or airline ticket office and buy your tickets there.

② As soon as you receive your ticket, make sure all the information on it is correct especially the airports (if any of the cities have more than one) and the flight dates. Have any necessary corrections made immediately.

③ It's a good idea to reconfirm your reservations before you start your trip; flight schedules sometimes change.

④ On international trips, most airlines require that you reconfirm your onward or return reservations at least 72 hours before each flight. If you don't, your reservations may be canceled.

Check your tickets as you board each flight to ensure that only the correct coupon has been removed by the airline agent.

16. Numbering the paragraphs 1 through 4 as they now appear, choose the option that places them in chronological order.

A 2, 3, 4, 1

B 3, 1, 2, 4

C 3, 2, 1, 4

D 1, 2, 3, 4

17. As the passage appears in paragraph 1, why is it suggested that you buy your tickets from a "conveniently located" agency or office?

A because you can stop on your way to the airport to pick up your tickets

B because you can pick your tickets up rather than relying on the mail

C because the airlines themselves often make mistakes in issuing tickets

D because it is good to support local businesses

18. Which is a possible result of not following the advice offered in the first sentence of paragraph 2?

A You might fly into the right city, but the wrong airport.

B You might miss your flight, because the date was improperly recorded.

C You might not be allowed to board your flight because the name on the ticket doesn't match that on your ID.

+ D Any of the above could happen as a result of not following the advice. 20

Task 3. Read the text. Are the sentences 19-25 true (T) or false (F)?

Enjoy the ride

We often hear people claim, 'It's the journey, not the destination that matters.' Based on my experience with children, this couldn't be further from the truth. To a child's mind, there is nothing more boring than having to sit in the car for hours. Inevitably, as a parent, you run out of ways to entertain the kids in the first thirty minutes, leaving several hours of hearing, 'How much further?' and 'Are we there yet?' The journey to the holiday destination quickly becomes an obstacle you have to overcome.

However, as we get older, these journeys no longer seem a hindrance. Some people actually engineer ways to increase the journey time by stopping off at a hotel en route, or taking a scenic route. So, why is this the case? Why do we enjoy journeys?

Firstly, it's a good chance to get to know your travel companions. Let's face it, in everyday life, how often do we have time for a three-hour chat with someone? It seldom happens because we are used to constantly rushing around. When we're at work, we're working hard; when we're at home, we're preparing food or doing housework. If our travelling companion is someone we don't know well, we often discover that there is more to them than meets the eye. Even if we're with someone we know well, we're bound to discover things we never knew about them, things that have gone under the radar up to this point. This in itself can make the friendship stronger and enables us to form a closer bond with our friends.

Secondly, by talking to others in this confined space, we often find the courage to offload our burdens. This might come from discussing our imperfections, or our relationships, or our low self-confidence. The worries going round in our heads can find a way out on these long journeys, which in turn takes a weight off our shoulders. We might not find an answer to our problems, but we might receive a degree of assurance – a kind of therapy, if you like.

Thirdly, we are forced to sit down on a car journey. On a longer trip, driving can be shared equally, allowing some relaxation for all involved. Naturally, many of us are sitting down at work or at home, but sitting in a car means we're not distracted by the boss or by chores. We can simply enjoy the scenery, have a nap, or listen to music without feeling under pressure to do something more productive.

Lastly, a long car journey gives us a respect for distance and awe-inspiring landscape. No one is too long in the tooth to appreciate a great sunset or a beautiful snow-capped mountain in the distance. We are given the opportunity to notice things we are unable to see in our day-to-day lives, or that we're usually distracted from appreciating.

Of course, there may be a few hiccups along the way – our travel companion's demand for toilet breaks could get on our nerves, or the severe weather warnings could have been right after all – but it's likely that a long car journey will have more ups than downs. I recommend contacting a few friends and organizing a road trip to anyone who is getting tired of their everyday routine. It will do you the world of good.

We're often told that sport is good for our health, and that is true. Practicing a sport regularly is really important, especially for grown-ups.

At first, exercising helps us to stay fit - slim, flexible, strong, beautiful and healthy. It's proved by scientists that fit people live longer, and avoid much of illnesses, especially diseases that develop with ageing. For example, all kinds of stretching beat arrhythmic, cardio trainings can help to avoid serious heart diseases like arrhythmia or stroke, swimming is good for your back.

I have to admit that in modern society sport takes an important part. Healthy, trained and fit people ~~are~~ can get the most interesting jobs: policeman, pilot, firefighter - even cosmonaut! Also fit people look appealing and beautiful, so it is easier for them to find a girlfriend or boyfriend and make some good friends.

Finally, sports make you smart. It can sound strange, but it is truth. There are many rules in every kind of sport, and the player has to remember each. ~~Also, some sports like~~ Also, you have to think of a difficult strategy to win some sport games like football, basketball or rugby, for example.

To sum up, sport and exercise are very important for people. Keep fit and have a healthy lifestyle!

gr I would like to tell you about how important is to practise a sport regularly when you in your teens!

First of all, you need to eat correct food. If you are going to eat a lot of fast food, crisps or anything, you will be fat, and also will be problems with your heart! That's why you need to eat more vegetables, eggs and meat, because they are important for your hormonal system.

and Fitness ~~at~~ gym are the second things you need to do. Lots of sport things are good for your own body. Also you can work hard and get some muscles on your arms, legs, torso and more!

p/gr You ^{sp}my ask a question: "Why am I need to doing that?" And I will answer! Because you will die early. But, hey! Eat right food, don't do drugs, go to the gym and you will be fine! Also, you can get friends in the gym.

gr/p For example - I every day eat meat and vegetables, go to fitness center two times on a week, and my height don't get higher than sixteen kg. And that's why it is important to practise in sport in your teens!
